DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-6, 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Berwanger in view of Battig.

Re claims 1-6, 11 and 12, Berwanger discloses a brake system for braking aircraft wheels, the brake system being of the type which, for each wheel, comprises a stator central portion coaxially surrounding a wheel axle on which a rotor annular portion is mounted to rotate, and a succession of brake disks (29, 31, 33) disposed between the stator central portion and the rotor annular portion with alternate disks being constrained to rotate with one and the other of said portions, said stator central portion being provided with a brake collar equipped with a plurality of sets of pistons (25, 27) and, rigidly secured to said collar, a torsion tube (39) internally provided with a transverse annular web (45), and a centering bearing (79) being interposed between the annular web and the axle. (Figure 2) However Berwanger does not teach wherein the centering bearing has structural characteristics that vary circumferentially in a distribution configuration suitable for generating different bearing stiffnesses along two orthogonal axes contained in a plane that is perpendicular to the axis of the axle. Battig teaches a centering bearing (13) which has structural characteristics that vary circumferentially in a distribution configuration suitable for generating different bearing stiffnesses along two orthogonal axes contained in a plane that is perpendicular to the axis of the axle. (Figure 6) It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used the bearing of Battig in the brake system of Berwanger in order to provide vibration damping.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 7-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-6, 11 and 12 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion
